

{r}evolution

James and Grace Lee Boggs Center to Nurture Community Leadership

5th Annual Public Philosophy Network Field Trip

Thursday, October 17, 2019

The PPN conference is pleased to offer an opportunity to visit the Boggs Center, Detroit. A bus will leave from the Kellogg Center in the morning and return prior to the opening of the conference later in the afternoon. Limited seats available, so please register early. (Additional fee of $60)

About the Field Trip

The James and Grace Lee Boggs Center to Nurture Community Leadership will be hosting our tour entitled: From Growing Our Economy to Growing our Souls.

The tour is rooted in the ideas and activism of James and Grace Lee Boggs, Detroit activists whose lineage and legacy the Boggs Center carries forward. We host the tour for people who are eager to be introduced to, and begin to learn about and engage with, the story of Detroit as told from below. This is a story of and by people who are making a way out of no way, and who see opportunities amidst the crises of the present moment. From Making a Way out of no way to visionary organizing and transformation.

We will meet at the Boggs Center and conclude the tour with time for reflection and a visit through the home of James and Grace Lee Boggs. The tour is about time and ideas. The significant question: What time is it on the clock of the world? What does it mean we are entering a new epoch in human history? How does the work of the Center contribute to the movement to make Next American Revolution. We will move through history, the present and introduce the future through our visits to the Elmwood Cemetery, the Packard Automotive Plant, Poletown, An Urban Garden/farm, the Heidelberg Art Project, the CAN Art Handworks (Upcycling and Windmills), and the James & Grace Lee Boggs School.

Check out this documentary:

American Revolutionary, POV Season 27 PBS <http://www.pbs.org/pov/americanrevolutionary/>

Boggs Center website: www.boggscenter.org